The cure is so close we can smell it.
We have openings in an investigational study for osteosarcoma.

It is our mission to offer not only the most advanced veterinary cancer treatment, but to continually push the bar further.

We are now enrolling dogs with osteosarcoma that have undergone amputation and chemotherapy in a study of the Canine Osteosarcoma Vaccine, Live Listeria Vector (COV-LLV), a conditionally licensed product.

For participation, patients must meet the eligibility requirements listed in the study protocol. A review of the patient’s medical history, a physical exam, thoracic radiographs, and routine blood and urine testing are required to confirm eligibility.

All dogs enrolled in the study will be treated with the vaccine. If you think your dog could benefit or you are a veterinarian who would like to refer a patient to this study, please contact Jessica West at 703-451-8900 for more information.
